Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Ohio, Delaware, Indiana and Michigan.— T is was succeeded by the 14th corps, Brevet Major General Jeff. C. Davis, commanding. It was composed of troops from Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Minnesota and Kentucky. The respective commanders of the armics, divisions and brigades bore upon their persons profusions of flowers, and as they passed along the line cheers were given and flags;

The armies represented all branches and divisions of the service-cavalry, artillery and infantry, with a sufficient variety intermixing, including appointments, &c., to relieve the general same ness of unifo m. Several regiments of zouaves contributed to produce this effect. Sections of pontoon bridges, stretchers, ambulances, and even heavy wagons, were features in the procession .--There was also a fair representation of the spade and ax department, the implements being carried on the shoulders of both white and black sol-

Much amusement was occasioned by a display of pack-horses and mules, which were all heavily loaded with Commissary supplies, including chick ens. A coon, a dog and a goat were comfortable fastened to three of the saddles. These were pets of the soldiers. Two black soldiers, of the largest size, riding very small mules, and their feet nearly touching the ground, was regarded as a comic scene in connection with this part of the display, were out from camp. Those of them that have The 21 and 5th cavalry divisions, commanded and occasioned great laughter,

An interesting feature in the parade, was the exhibition of flags and banners of various patterns some of them nearly new while others were torn by bullets and reduced to shreds, and others were faded by exposure to the weather or blackened by he smoke of battle. Several staffs were carried from which the flags had been shot away. All the spear-heads were ornamented with flowers.

It was remarked, as in contrast with the Army of the Potomac, that the troops composing the armies of Georgia and Tennessee, wore the wide im felt hats, regulation pattern, and their appearance, in all respects, was equal to that of the Army of the Potomic, notwithstanding they had performed more marching service. Their movements were much admired and applauled. The commander of each army corps and division, attended by one staff officer, dismounted after passing the General in Chief, and joined him until J. H. Reed & Co.; Smith & Dwyer, and all Druggists and his corps or division had passed the reviewing stand, when they again joined their commands, Brigade bands, or consolidations of field music, turned out and played as their brigades passed.
